MONDAY, JULY 24, 1905. THE ATTEMPT ON THE SULTAN.

The bomb-explosion which followed the ceremony of the Selamlik on Friday was one of those cruel and useless outrages that encourage sanguinary repression and are justified neither by their consequences nor by their possible of the consequences of the consequences or by their possible of the consequences o of those grain and nealess outrages that encourage sanginary repression and are justified neither by their consequences nor by their possible success. The author or authors of the crime, whether Bolgarians or members of some other need that has its quarred with the Ottoman Government, appear to have periabed with the soldiers and policy whom their bombs slaughtered; had their attempt been successful, and had they except from the just fary of the soldiers and policy when their bombs slaughtered; had their attempt been successful, and had they except from the just fary of the soldiers and the populace, they would have had lesiare to study the consequences of their sot. The death of Sultan Abdul Hamid from a bomb outrage might well have involved the measures of the thousands of Christians. It would have furnished the lawless elements of the Modern population, the Albanians, Less, Oirceasinan, and Hamid ich Kurds, with an excuse to fall upon Armenians, Syrians, and Notorians, for whatever criticisms may be urged against the internal policy of Sultan Abdul Hamid, there seems no particular reason why this policy should be reversed by his successor. The present Sultan's soldier son is an unknown quantity and Mohamed Rashid, his destined successor, has been recontly described as a recluse, a high-minded reformer, and a frautic dervish. We know at least the main features of the present Sultan's soldier son in an unknown quantity and Mohamed Rashid, his destined successor, has been recontly described as a recluse, a high-minded reformer, and a frautic dervish. We know at least the main features of the present Sultan's policy and the known in the East is preferable to the unknown.

Empire. His Ministers are marionettes worked by the able group of private secretaries who pull the strings in obedience to the directions of their Imperial master. The provinces, first dragooned into submission and then linked dragooned into submission and then missass with the centre by railway and telegraph, are as obedient as they were in the days of Solyman the Magnificent. The Pan-Islamic movement with the control by railway and telegraph, are as obelient as they were in the Lay of Solyman the Magnificent. The Pau-Islamir myresenant has emphasized his position as Khalif in all the Moslem world, and the consistent failure of European diplomacy to succour the Armenian and the Macodonian, with the easy overthrow of the Greek, have exalted the political and military prestige of the raile. The world knows too well what means have been amployed to buttress the stern autocrapy of the Commander of the Faithful, yet it is impossible to withhold our admiration of the tenseity, finesse, and political insight that have brought about his triumph. The success of the Sultan and the preservation of the Ottoman Empire are intunately connected. Had the bomb flung by tanatic hands reached its mark, a period of stress and turnoil would have set in, the beginning of many wors for Christian and Moslem silks in the Near Bast. We can understand Moslem religion on the escape of his Majesty, and congratulate the Sultan on his courage and coolness in the face of dealty peril—vuched for by an official communiqué—and Europe on the preservation of a Sovereign, whose polly of playing off every one Power against every other is believed to make for peace in the East if it is not always accompanied by prosperity.

THE ZEMSTVOS CONGRESS

APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE.

"USELESS TO APPROACH TSAR"

Moscow, July 21.

The Congress of Zenutron displayed remusable independence and unanimity. Prince Dolgoravicoff and Trubustatoi, and other nobles, in the most outspoken terms, denounced the existing regime. The Congress decided that it is necless again to approach the Tax, and resolved to appeal to the people, emphasising the migovernment of the country and the imperative needs of reform. (Rester.)

A REMARKABLE GATHERING.

The Reyplian Army annual dinner took place at the Grafton Galleries, London, on Trunday week. There were present:—Major-General Sir R. Wingate, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., D.S.O. (Sirdar), in the chair Field-Marshal Sir H. Evelyn Wood, V.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G. Brigadier-General Sir J. G. Maxwell, K.C.B., K.C.Y.O., C.M.G., D.S.O., Major-General A. S. Wyrne, C.B.; Colonels B. D. Consign Statin, R.O. S.L. S., Dr. (Christopherson, and Mr. W. P. Pollard (Trasaurer).

The "Pall Mall Gazette" says:—The dinner of the Anglo-Egyption Army, which coincided in date with that given by the Army and Navy Club to the Duke of Connaught, was, like it, a very remarkable gathering. Admiral Locas, V.O., ably presided at the last-named, Sir Egginall Wingate over the former, and was supported by Sir Evelyn Wood, Sir John Maxwell, and a number of distinguished officers who made their career in Egypt, Lord Kitcherser being, of course, nuaroidably absent. Time was when service in Egypt was the only outlet for the adventurous, and numbers came to the front there whose names have become household words. None has risne of fact or a bligh as Sir Reginald Wingate, to whom we owe no small portion of the ultimate establish ment of British power in the Sudan. Since he become Governor General Wingate has worked little less than a miracle in the Sudan. He has abolished "backsheebt," and that is no small achievement. He had made up his mind that the practice which had taken such a hold in Lower Egypt was a diagnose and a discredit to the country, and he set himself at once to forbit it in the Sudan. Orders were issued to the police to a rerest summarily all and singular who made the conventional appeal, and nothing strikes trayellors to Khartonn more nowadays than that the hateful word backsheesh is never beard.

The following printed questions and answers in regard to cotton prices were issued in Saturday week's Parliamentary papers:—

form, in the same vay as Lord Cromer's report on Egypt was published.

Mr. Baflour replied: The hon. gentleman has, I think, misapprehended the view expressed by Lord Cromer in his official report for 1904, as the following passage will show:—"On the other hand, most sathorities hald the opinion, in which I wenture to express my entire concurrence, that it is practically impossible, by legislation, to put a stop to speculation without at the same time canning great hindrance to trade in general. If anything is done, it will probably be in the direction of preparing a 'reglement de bourse'....' In view bersof and of the fact that the resolution of the International Cotton Congress merely suggested ortain technical laterations of trade practice, I do not think it would be expedient to act on the suggestion of the hon. gentleman. I have no right to give any instructions as to the publication of the proceedings of the International Cotton Congress, which is an unofficial body, and as to the publication of the proceedings of the New York of Agricultural Congress, perhaps the hon. gentleman will consult the President of the Board of Agricultura.

Mr. Balfour replied: I am informed that no such compact is known to the Board of Trade, and its existence seems rather improbable. The price of cotton has recently advanced in consequence, as I am told, of the unexpectedly low official estimate of the coming crop. It is not proposed to take the steps suggested by the hos. gentleman.

(Cational from Saturday).

Being a rulewy man, when I phythehaed the Report of Lord Farrer's Commission, what I expected to Lord Farrer's Commission, what I expected to the present system of administration as the saturday of the district of the present system of administration as the saturday of the control of the present system of administration as the saturday of the present system of administration as the saturday of the saturday of a sufficient degree or emetency in their bordinates. But it would be a more waste of time to try [diseass the Report in any detail. It commit itself by the recurrence of such phrases 'This appears to be,'' "sa said to be," and on, applied to questions as to which almost ye omploye of the Administration could have on the Commission full and ample informaany employe or a commission full and ampre more detailed remarks on Locomotives, etc., the Commission have been more sence full, and have not left much room for criticium, though abundance for difference of opinion, which is quite another matter. To this there is one very noticeable exception, the Note on Signals. Here the Report goes a continuity, adopted now, I believe, a continuity, adopted now, I believe, the Note on Signais. Here the Report goes against the principle, adopted now, I believe, by almost all the railways of England, that the signals alone their cabins should have their isacks to the line when working their levers. So again they go, against the practice now be, using almost universal when they say that the signals should be under the Permanent This is going back to the primitive days silway working. In Egypt it is especially oseasty that the new signalling which, from a enginears who design it to the pointsmen of signalling men who have to work it, usands men specially trained, should be in a hands of specialists. In England and merica the signalling becomes yearly more extra the signal special and independent department, and its importance is shown by the fact and the state of the signal special and independent department, and its importance is shown by the fact and the set than five schools for the training and the search of the signal search of the state of the signal search of the state of the state

FOUNTIAN STATE RAILWAYS, CRISIS IN THE GERMAN ARMY

The strained relations which have arisen between France and Germany in relation to the affairs of Morocco have invitably caused each nation to look very cleedy into any evidence that can illustrate the unitary pre-paredness of its rival. The German army has long been taken as the pattern of what an army should be, sind since the Treaty of Frankfort commons efforts have been made to shape it as a perfect military machine. Its numbers have been increased, new units have been formed, the effort has been made to maintain the old irm discipline, the officers have boen including high layer of the serious study of the art of war, by their love of work, and by their zeal in training, all qualities which have enable them to give an example of efficiency, discipline, and devotion to their shordinates and to other armies. "We have the best officers in the world," add Bismarch, no without reson. The strained relations which have aris of war, by their love of work, and by their zeal in training, all qualities which have enabled them to give an example of efficiency, discipline, and devotion to their subordinates and to other armies. "We have the best officers in the world," said Bismarch, not without reason, in the Reichstag. Was it not a German who was the chief teacher of the Japanese? Has not a German brought about the reorganisation and material reequipment of the Ottoman Army? Is not the German general staff regarded with envy and admiration by other nations! All the efforts have not been in vain, for the German may became a marvellous military organism. The law of 1874 gays it a strength of over 400,000 officers and men; to day then about 100,000 officers and men; to day then about 100,000 officers and men; to day then about 100,000 officers and men; to day the day of the said of th to his discredit, the barracks are left dirty, the men are late at the assemblist, the drill is bad and inexact. In support of this fierce indictment, the French critic cities incidents at Dessan, Strasburg, Brealat, Saarburg, and elsewhere. It has been neleossary to forbid soldiers to take part in Socialist meetings, to have in their possession revoluctionary literature, or to introduce it into barracks, while every man belonging to the army, as soon as he has knowledge of the excitence of a Socialist propagands, is engloined to denounce those concerned in it to the authorities It is undoubtably true that an army raised upon the

The signalities of the more proposed in the many being the many to the more proposed in the many to the many to the more proposed in the many to the action of the worked by a separate staff of special practical means, exactly as the Telegraph and Beneral Electrical Departments have too be. That one and the same man may be quite in that case be cannot possibly give his multiple of acting as the head of two or more departments does not affect the question, except indeed that it is beyond dispate that in that case be cannot possibly give his multiple of the internal case and the same many be quite in that case be cannot possibly give his multiple of the internal search of the many the place to the invised attention to ether; and that one or other changes and the same many that the same properties of the same property will be a many property and the same property will be a many the place to the invised. Search property will be a many the place to the invised attention to ether; and that one or other changes and the same many that the same property of the same property of the same property in the property of property of property and the same property in the property of property and the property of property in the proper timate pride ceases to exist, while the spirit of intrigue and servility triumphs, and the paralysis of discouragement creeps over the best officers of the army. "No man is sure of to-morrow, and no officer knows when the saw and on Damoeles may fall." Careful observers of the German army will discour a substratum of troth in all these statements, but the French will be wise if they do not accept them as conveying the whole truth. M. Reybel, however, insists more upon the Socialistic than upon the high social designer to the army. It is peculiarly interesting to find a French oritic thus analysing the tendericies of the Germany arm. We have thought the view thus presented would interest iour find a French critic thus analysing the tenden-cies of the Germany arm. We have thought the view thus presented would interest our readers. They will see that it may be truthful in its general tendency as indicating some changes, by it inaccurate in its estimate of the gravity of the complaint which the critic at-tempts to diagnose.

Played on the A. C. Gyound on Saturday last. Ramleh wo C. C. ground on Saturday last. Ramleh wo the toss and sent in H. B. Carver and Birley to bat. Birley was soon cought in the alips, and with the exception of H. B. Carver, who made 29, none of the Ramleh aide could do much with Maclaram's bowling. The Alexandria fielding was very fair and faw catches were dropped. Alexandria never download the control of the con he had made 94 he skied the ball and was taken by the wickst keeper. His innings was a trifle locky, but he hit extremely hard and cleanly, as on he gathered from the fact that his total included two sizes, a five, and thirteen fours. The other batmen could not do much against Trafford and H. B. Carver and there were some rather unnecessary runs out at the end of the limings. Score and analysis:— RAMLEH.
